Synopsis This book features three bestselling authors, three new stories of love, lust and sweet desire. Inhibitions melt away with these three deliciously erotic romance novellas that all have something sweet in common - tempting chocolate. In Francis Ray's "A Chocolate Affair", Lucian Faulkner had become a wealthy man satisfying women. He is CEO of A Chocolate Affair, a very successful family-owned sweet company. While catering a bridal shower, he is stunned to run into the one woman he has never been able to forget, his college sweetheart Miranda Collins. It takes Lucian two days of calling and dozens of chocolate treats to get Miranda to go out with him, but can he convince Miranda to give him a second chance? Savannah is a restless free spirit when it comes to sex. In Maryann Reid's "A Good Man is Hard to Count", she keeps track of them in her "Man Jar" coded by different colour sour sweets. While she is out with her girlfriend one night, she sets her eyes on Clinton, a gorgeous local fireman. Slowly, Savannah learns that although variety may be the spice of life, she has finally found her favourite flavour. Nicole Davis and her best friend Marcus have always shared an intense physical attraction. In "Chocolate Kisses", by Renee Luke, when Marcus gets a terrific job offer in Atlanta, Nicole decides to indulge in a secret fantasy. She stocks her cookie jar with chocolate kisses and condoms and the two become lovers. Both agree to continue their liaison until the cookie jar is empty, but somewhere along the line the 'no strings attached' arrangement became something more...
