Groartig! Von Beatrix Kruse Eine ganz ungewöhnliche, beherrschende Geschichte, die einem noch Wochen später im Kopf rumgeht. Tolle Story, klasse geschrieben, das perfekte Lesevergnügen für einen Abend. Leider nur für einen Abend! Denn in dieser Geschichte stecken genug Ideen für einen dicken Roman. Leona ist eine Figur, die man nicht so schnell vergisst. Und von der man gerne noch viel mehr lesen würde.

Kurzbeschreibung Two strangers on an almost empty bus Having suffered a brain injury as a child, LEONA lives with chronic and painful nerve damage and the uncalled-for ability to read people's souls. Her condition makes it difficult to build relationships, and her love life consists of a string of casual flings. A deeply wounded survivor of an abusive marriage, freshly divorced SEAN struggles with feelings of guilt and failure. Despite being out of the dating loop and not quite ready to move on, he crushes hard on the young woman who rides the same bus every night. When they end up together in a room the size of a shoebox, strangers might become friends, lovers or something else entirely. (Short story told in two parts, alternating between Leona's inner voice during in present tense, and Sean rehashing the events that lead to their encounter in a countdown. Warning: contains descriptions of heated lovemaking.)
