

[Download] Cross the River to Home

Cross the River to Home

Von Kaye Kelly

*audiobook / ebooks / Download PDF / ePub / DOC

Download

Read Online

Produktinformation -Verkaufsrang: #1261546 in eBooksVerffentlicht am: 2011-11-01Erscheinungsdatum:
2011-11-01File Name: B00AM7FFEM | File size: 48.Mb

Von Kaye Kelly : Cross the River to Home before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Cross the River to Home:

KundenrezensionenHilfreichste Kundenrezensionen0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. Cross The River For HomeVon JudeFor anyone wanting to read a little of New Zealand's history, this novel, set in the rugged West Coast of the country, is a sure winner. An enchanting love story between an Englishman and a Chinese lady. I enjoyed Kelly's style of writing and loved her characters. Read it!

KurzbeschreibungAn absorbing novel set in 1870s New Zealand about an impossible love between a half-Chinese woman and a young immigrant. Henry arrives in the South Island of New Zealand in search of his sister, who is now living in Charleston, married to a local doctor. It is there that he comes across Mai, who has brought her grandfather for eye surgery. Mai is half-Chinese and the love that ignites between her and Henry seems destined to be snuffed out. With family ties, racial prejudice and the local community conspiring against any match between Henry and Mai, their futures promise to be bleak. But perhaps Mai's grandfather is not the only one destined to see more clearly . .

.KurzbeschreibungAn absorbing novel set in 1870s New Zealand about an impossible love between a half-Chinese woman and a young immigrant. Henry arrives in the South Island of New Zealand in search of his sister, who is now living in Charleston, married to a local doctor. It is there that he comes across Mai, who has brought her grandfather for eye surgery. Mai is half-Chinese and the love that ignites between her and Henry seems destined to be snuffed out. With family ties, racial prejudice and the local community conspiring against any match between Henry and Mai, their futures promise to be bleak. But perhaps Mai's grandfather is not the only one destined to see more clearly . .

.Synopsis Set in the 1870s, this is the story of an impossible love between a half-Chinese woman, Mai, and Henry, a young immigrant from the UK who has come to the South Island of New Zealand in search of his sister. She is now living in Charleston, married to a local doctor, to whom Mai takes her grandfather for eye surgery. With family ties, racial prejudice and the local community conspiring against any match between Henry and Mai, their futures promise to be bleak. But perhaps Mai's grandfather is not the only one destined to see more clearly ... This absorbing novel vividly recreates the time and place, providing a thoroughly entertaining read. ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Born on the West Coast, an area adjacent to rain forests, Tony (her long-suffering, hugely supportive and patient husband) and Kaye became alarmed - after 27 wet weekends in a row - at the discovery of embryonic webbings between their toes and migrated to the very much drier climate of Blenheim. However, as the saying goes, you can take the girl out of the Coast, but you can't take the Coast out of the girl, and the next best thing to living there is writing about it. She's always felt she should write and finally in 1992 she couldn't ignore the feeling any longer. Since then she's had short stories published in the New Zealand Woman's Weekly, and the Australian New Idea, also articles published locally. Mecca's Gold, a historical novel, was published in 1998 by Quoin Press.