Plot twists galore Von Oleg Medvedkov "The Making of Marea" by Scarlette D'Noire is a short story that describes a "making" of a vampire. Sounds like we've read this before, right? Well, here's the thing: as long as these stories are freshly told, have unexpected plot twists, and craftfully written, we'll be chasing the high again and again. The story is set in a plantation, where Marea, an ex-slave girl, is an object of desire of both the Master, and Delano, the vampire. Delano turns Marea, hoping to bind her to him. Sounds simple, but it isn't. Marea is not a "simple" girl, not a plaything to those who have more power. Read on to find some nice plot twists and get yourself surprised. A very neatly constructed story set in the vampire lore. 0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. Vampires and domination Von Henry Summon I love the tales about vampires and domination. I was very attracted by the title and book description. Of course, I hoped with myself that Marea would be the winner. I don't want to write anything about the ending, but it's amazing. This is a gripping, elegant and intense tale. I loved it!
